Child Abuse

a catalogue of library holdings

2nd edition

Child abuse is a particularly disturbing phenomenon. In recognition of the societal nature of this societal problem, responsible groups and individuals in this province have been involved in the development of special programs to improve our knowledge about and ability to prevent and deal with it.

Through the Child Abuse Prevention Program of this Ministry, we encourage and support the efforts of our agencies, organizations, districts and the public to meet this special challenge.

This is a special and necessary step towards the development of coordinated efforts to help us to identify the signs and make of an abused child, to help us to develop and expand training materials to help our own staffs to become more knowledgeable and to enter this to provide the necessary services. Libraries of film, film strips, audiotapes, books and learning materials are being developed.

The Ministry Library has brought together an extensive collection of related materials dealing with child abuse and related child abuse, which will be updated periodically, and has prepared to assist practitioners, schools and community groups to identify and make use of these materials.

PREFACE

The protection of the children of Ontario is the responsibility of all residents of this Province. The Ministry of Community and Social Services, however, through several laws, has been charged specifically to ensure the provision of necessary services and protection for children and their families.

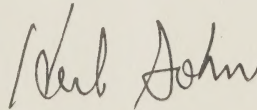

It is appropriate for society to take such special pains, for our future is dependent upon the well being of our children and youth.

Child abuse is a particularly disturbing phenomenon. In recognition of the special nature of this societal problem, responsible groups and individuals in this province have been involved in the development of special programs to improve our knowledge about and ability to prevent and deal with it.

Since 1976 the Child Abuse Prevention Program of this Ministry has encouraged and supported the joining of efforts of our agencies, professionals, officials and lay people to meet this special challenge.

Multiprofessional seminars have brought tens of thousands of concerned individuals together in Ontario to examine the issues and make plans to deal with them; special projects have developed and tested training materials to help our specialists to become more knowledgeable and so better able to provide the necessary services. Libraries of films, film slides, articles, books and training packages are being developed.

The Ministry library has brought together an extensive collection of written materials dealing with child abuse and neglect. This catalogue, which will be updated periodically, has been prepared to assist practitioners, students and community groups to identify and make use of those materials.

RED ROSES

Tommy is three and when he's bad
his mother dances with him.
She puts on the record,
"Red Roses for a Blue Lady"
and throws him across the room.
Mind you,
she never laid a hand on him,
only the wall laid a hand on him.
He gets red roses in different places,
the head, that time he was as sleepy as a river,
the back, that time he was a broken scarecrow,
the arm like a diamond had bitten it,
the leg, twisted like a licorice stick,
all the dance they did together,
Blue Lady and Tommy.
You fell, she said, just remember you fell.
I fell, is all he told the doctors in the big hospital. A nice lady came and asked him questions but because he didn't want to be sent away he said, I fell.
He never said anything else although he could talk fine.
He never told about the music or how she'd sing and shout holding him up and throwing him.

He pretends he is her ball.
He tries to fold up and bounce
but he squashes like a fruit.
For he loves Blue Lady and the Spots of red red roses he gives her.
